NINETY ENTRIES FOR FAIR RACES

NUMBER OF HORSES ENTERED AT AMBOY NEXT WEEK EX-CEEDS FORMER RECORDS.

FAIR WILL EXCELL OTHERS

Track is in Fine Condition and the Exhibition Space All Taken.

With nearly 90 entries and the track worked into excellent condition the race meeting to be held in connection with the great Lee County Fair at Amboy next week promises to be one of the features of racing in northern Illinois this year.

The list of horses entered for the races is by far the largest and best of any entry list published in this vicinity this summer and promises for the lovers of the sport some great fun during the last three days of the fair, on which the races will be held.

And the track promises to be exceptionally fast. For several weeks it has been worked systematically, and the heavy rains which fell in Amboy yesterday were just the thing needed to bring the course into the best possible shape. The drivers who are working their horses on the race track state that it is rapidly getting into shape and they are all looking forward to some great sport.

Big Grand Stand.

The addition to the grand stand, which makes it 250 feet in length, and gives it a seating capacity of 4000, has been completed and the big stand, the largest in this section, adds much to the accommodations and appearance of the grounds.

The fair next week, with favorable weather conditions, will eclipse any ever given in Lee county, both in the number of exhibits, race entries and attractions. Nearly every foot of available space has been taken for the exhibits and, as has been stated elsewhere, the entry list for the races will bring some real racing blood to the fair.

The midway will be a feature and the free attractions, which will be given on a platform in front of the grand stand between the heats of the races, will be high class and entertaining. A balloon ascension each evening will add to the fair, while a big dance will be given in the opera house each evening for the pleasure seekers. The Marquette orchestra of this city will furnish the music for the dances.

FISH NETS AND TRAPS ARE CONFISCATED

Sterling, Sept. 12—Deputy fish and game wardens made a raid on the fishermen who have been seining near Nelson and confiscated four nets and two traps. These articles will be held as evidence in the prosecutions which are likely to follow later, although at the time the owners of the illegal apparatus couldn't be found.

Will Push Law to Limit.

The fish and game law is to be pushed to the limit regardless of whose toes are stepped on.

$10,000 FOUND BURIED ON ILLINOIS FARM

Shipman, Ill., Sept. 12—On his deathbed eight days ago Clayton E. Kellam, an eccentric farmer, confided to his brother Henry that at various places on the farm was buried a considerable sum of money, which he could have for the digging.

The brother immediately instituted a search for the hidden wealth and thus far has deposited in the bank at Shipman $9000 in gold and $1000 in bills beside a quantity of war time currency.

When he appeared at the bank a week ago to deposit a bag of moldy gold coin there was little comment. Upon his return two days later with another bag of tarnished gold gossip ensued, and when he reappeared yesterday with a third bag of gold caked with mud, together with several rolls of mildewed greenbacks, a sensation followed.

Mrs. W. Wise has gone to DeKalb to visit.

PECULIAR MISHAP TO G. & N. W. TRAIN

FREEPORT PASSENGER AUTO-MATICALLY STOPS WHEN AIR HOSE BREAKS.

Belvidere, Sept. 12—The Freeport passenger due in Belvidere from Chicago at 9:47 Monday night met with a peculiar mishap between Gilberts and Hunter and for a time the passengers thought they were in a peck of trouble as the train came to a stop with a suddenness that jarred some of the passengers nearly out of their seats.

The sudden stopping of the train while running at a high speed was primarily caused by a loose plank in one of the crossings. The plank took an upward shoot as the train was sweeping over it and striking the air line pipe snapped it squarely in two. This caused an immediate setting of the brakes with emergency force and with a roar and grind the train came to a dead stop within a very short distance.

The broken pipe was of iron and the train crew made a temporary repair by using what is called the whistling hose as a coupling. The train was delayed only a short time by the accident. Conductor Hurley and Engineer Wm. Fessler were in charge of the passenger.

FREEPORT FIRM HAS COMPLETED PAVING

GUND & GRAHAM LOAD UP TOOLS AND SHIP THEM HOME—
DID GOOD WORK.

Gund & Graham, the Freeport contractors, last evening completed on schedule time the big paving contract of Commercial alley, east and west, and tributary streets, and this morning they loaded their machinery and tools and shipped them back to Freeport. The improvement, which comprised ten blocks of asphalt filled brick pavement, and three blocks of sewer, was most satisfactorily accomplished and Foreman Croft and his men are deserving of the praise given them.

HUNTERS' LICENSE

PRONOUNCED INVALID
Attorney General Lucey has stated in an official opinion that hunting licenses so far issued in this state this year are invalid because of improper form and signature. Instructions have been given to cancel the synopsis printed on the back of the license and to paste slips with the names of Wm. T. Fossett, acting state game commissioner, over the names of those originally printed on the document. Licenses issued prior to this opinion will be recognized by the state commission, as they were issued in good faith and before the opinion of the attorney general was brought to the attention of clerks issuing them.

SHOULD SHOW SPIRIT.

The merchant who does not advertise his business in his home paper has no right to complain because people buy of mail order houses or go to some other town to trade. If he does not show that he wants the trade and go after it in a progressive way, he should not expect to get much business.

BECOMES INSANE ON I. C. TRAIN

EDGAR F. NUTE OF FARMING-TON, MASS., TRIES TO LEAP FROM PASSENGER.

WAS ON WAY ACKLEY' IA.

Held at County Jail to Await Arrival of Relatives—His Affliction Probably Temporary

The temporary derangement of mind of Edgar F. Nute of Farmington, Mass., was the cause of the unfortunate man being taken from an Illinois Central train last evening, while he was enroute from his home to Ackley, Iowa, where he intended to visit relatives.

When Nute boarded the train at Chicago he was in his normal state. As the train neared Freeport he suddenly lost his mind and the train crew had to use force to keep him from jumping from the train. Special Agent Briggs of the I. C. met the train at the station and took Nute to the county jail, where he is being held. At first Nute talked in an incoherent manner and could not make plain his destination nor who he was. Later he told he was enroute to Ackley, Iowa, to visit his sister, Mrs. Sophie Stoney, whom he had not seen for fifty years.

Instructions from Ackley today were to the effect to hold Nute until relatives arrived to care for him and the trip to Ackley would be continued. It is believed the affliction is but temporary and that he will soon recover his mental equilibrium. Freeport Standard.

SHALL SCHOOL TEACHERS BE PAID TWICE A MONTH?

Does the board of education come under the semi-monthly payment law adopted at the last session of the legislature?

In Chicago the board of education has voted to pay its teachers every two weeks until it has been determined whether or not the law applies to school boards. An opinion has been asked from the attorney general.

Four weeks constitute a month in computing teachers' salaries and the schedules are therefore allowed once a month.

"It has not occurred to me that the school board would come under the new law," declared a member of the board today. "I do not believe the new law will apply to school teachers."

CHINA GETS JAP DEMANDS

Yuan and Advisers Consider Ultimatum From Empire.

Peking, Sept. 12—President Yuan Shi Kai and his advisers have taken under consideration the demands made by the Japanese government, which are tantamount to an ultimatum, for the killing of three Japanese at Nanking, the maltreatment of a consular messenger, the torture of a Japanese lieutenant at Hankow, and the imprisonment for two days of a Japanese lieutenant at Shantung. Japan demands an apology for the insults to the Japanese flag, the punishment of those responsible, and the payment of an indemnity. The Japanese legation says the demands represent the minimum to which China must agree without delay; otherwise Japan will take what action is deemed necessary.

NEW BARN BURNS STOCK DESTROYED

NEW BARN ON TRYON ROSBROOK
FARM BURNED THIS MORNING.

A large new barn on the farm of Commissioner of Highways Tryon Rosbrook was destroyed by fire of unknown origin this morning, flames consuming three horses, a bull and three calves, a large amount of hay, grain, many harnesses, tools, etc. The loss is estimated at $5,000 with insurance for but a part.

The flames were discovered by Mrs. Rosbrook at about 4 o'clock this morning, when a bright light in her bedroom awakened her. Going to the window she saw that the big new barn was ablaze and at once aroused the family and called neighbors. When discovered the fire was burning fiercely in the center of the structure and despite heroic efforts nothing in the barn could be saved.

The flames destroyed the milk house and also burned the doors off the silo, in view of which the loss may be larger than is now estimated. The horses were valued very highly by Mr. Rosbrook, as was also the bull which was destroyed. It was only by the hardest kind of work that the corn crib and other surrounding buildings were saved from destruction.

The board, before passing the tax levy, reduced the amount of money to be collected for the Mothers' Pension fund from $5,400 to $2,700. The taxes are for the following funds:

For Ballot Boxes.

The board also took notice of the suffrage of women in this state by providing that separate ballot boxes be secured for each voting precinct, as is provided by the suffrage law.

During the morning J. W. Kelley, the Dixon concrete manufacturer, addressed the board on the relative merits of brick and concrete as road material.

Reception at Rosbrook Home

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Rosbrook were responsible for a very pleasant evening which they gave a large number of friends at their home Wednesday.

Miss Jessie Harding of Chicago formerly of Dixon, a very talented young woman, gave a number of readings with exquisite grace and expression, giving evidence that she is one of the most able and charming readers of today. Her time in the city is filled with engagements of the highest order in the city of Chicago.

Miss Harding's first number consisted of a couple of French Canadian dialect sketches, given in a superb manner. "A Social Promoter," by Wilbur Nesbit, was given with inimitable grace. "An After Dinner Apology of a French Count" too the audience by storm and "The Sketch on Woman's Suffrage" was received with more applause and enthusiasm than any of the other readings, for it is a subject of today, and one which both men and women are vitally interested in. The humor of the selection was delicately and skillfully brought out with Miss Harding's tactful handling, and was greatly appreciated and enjoyed.

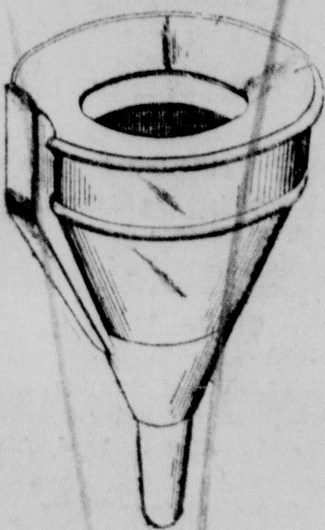

The last sketch of Miss Harding, on "Cammella Ricardo," was beautifully given and all her numbers were roundly encored.

Miss Maude Reynolds delighted the guests with a number of songs accompanied at the piano in true artistic style by Miss Ruth Altman. Her first number was "Ah, Sweet as Any Flower," by Schumann, and her encore number "Miswamy," by Harriet Ware won much applause. Her second number, "Marguerite," also by Harriet Ware, and her encore number, "The Last Dance" were given with beautiful expression. Miss Reynolds has a beautiful voice and range and has a brilliant future before her.

favorite musicians, and a master of the piano forte, favored the guests with some truly artistic and enjoyable selections on the piano. His first number, a "Rhapsody" by Brahms, was given with the wonderful interpretive skill and power, which is Mr. Stoddard's especial gift. He seems to be endowed with the same spirit as that in which the composer wrote the selection, and gives a marvelous interpretation. Among his numbers were two preludes by Chopin, and the sad and wonderful moods of this strange and sometimes weird master, were given with equal skill by Mr. Stoddard. His selections were roundly encored.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Herrick of Polo and Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Wolfersperger of Sterling. Mrs. Andrus, Mrs. Lyman of Boston and Miss Norris of Chicago.

Women Botanists of England.

There are many earnest women botanical students but to Miss Ethel Sargent, one of the most noted, belongs the signal honor of being the first woman to be appointed president of the botanical section for the meeting of the British association, which is to be held next September in Birmingham. Miss Ethel Sargent, who gave last year an advance course of botanical lectures to the London University, was one of the first elected women fellows of the Linnean society, and she also served on its council for some four years. As the author of many pamphlets relating to botanical subjects, such as microscopic vegetable anatomy and of seedlings, she has acquired considerable fame. Another woman botanist of note is Miss Stokes, who received a grant from the Royal society for her excellent research work in Japan. And Thomas, Miss Dawson, Miss Fraser and Miss Lorrain Smith are among others engaged in special botanical work of a serious kind.—Sphere, London.

Setting Up Balzac's Copy.

The prolongation of the rue de Rennes on the left bank of the Seine has already condemned the famous Passage du Pont Neuf, described by Zola in "Therese Raquin," and it now seems that the house in which Balzac installed his printing office in the rue Visconti, or the rue des Marais, as it then was, is also doomed. It has been said that the failure of the printing business was the direct result of the enormous labor entailed in making corrections in Balzac's manuscripts. "A compositor did his hour of Balzac as a convict did his imprisonment," wrote Champfleury. The stupendous task of setting up Balzac's manuscripts is shown by the fact that "Cesar Biotreau" had to be recomposed fifteen times in twenty days.—London Standard.

Police Not Required.

Quite the most important personage—in his own mind—at the football match between Bay of Islands and Hokitanga at Kaikohu (New Zealand) recently was a Maori armed with a stockwhip, who took upon himself the duty of preventing dusky spectators from encroaching on the field of play. He was a man of action and few words. The appearance of fifty pairs of brown bare feet over the sacred boundary-line was an immediate invitation to execute a movement with the whip that a cowboy might have envied. There would be a whirling motion in the air, a sharp, hissing crack, and next moment a group of bare-legged enthusiasts with one accord would jump simultaneously into the air and yell in unison.

Man a Woman Likes.

I do not think I have any definite opinion as to what sort of a man women like best, says Elinor Glyn in the Strand. It always seems to me the sex is divided into two general types—the women who want to rule, and the women who want to be ruled. Each type naturally prefers a different sort of man. And, while women keep the ideal of what they would prefer somewhere in their imagination, they succumb to the attractions of the most incredible creatures. But this is a great truth, that you can judge of the woman individually by the sort of man she attracts. Or I should say, the sort of men she attracts, because they are generally of the same type. Like draws like.

Goose Hollow Letter

When a feller tries to buy a load of hay he finds out that the boss ain't so much of a has-been as it might be.

It seems as though a woman is always just beginning or just getting through housecleaning.

The canning season is at hand, and the divorce courts show that a good many wimmin are canning their husbands.

If a feller has got a million dollars and a lot of nerve there is no reason why he shouldn't get along fairly well in this world.

It takes more'n a pair of eye-glasses to make a good newspaper man.

Nobody kin wear a dress suit in the afternoon exceptin' the feller that plays in the orchestra.

There are a lot of great authors in this country who never had any thing published. It beats all what a lot of rummies those magazine editors are.

One of the pleasant things in life is to see a baldheaded feller on a street corner sellin' hair restorer.

There is a jettie something wrong with every one of your friends, but there ain't nothin' the matter with yourself.

There are a lot of experts on the national currency question sitting around the corner grocery stores who can't pay their bills.

There is an end to everything in this world except automobile bills.

GAYNOR DIES AT SEA; REPUBLICAN
RULES NEW YORK

Mayor Expires of Heart Disease While Seeking Strength for Campaign.

KLINE IS ACTING EXECUTIVE

Details of Death Aboard Liner Sent to Gotham by Wireless by Son of Dead Man—Politics Upset by Tragedy.

New York, Sept. 12.—News of the death of Mayor William J. Gaynor of New York, which occurred on the Steamer Baltic on Wednesday, was sent by wireless by his son Rufus. The dispatch follows:

"My father, Mayor Gaynor, died on the Baltic at seven minutes to one o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

"Death was due to heart trouble. He was sitting in a deck chair when the end came. A deck steward had been with him but a few moments before his death and had taken his order for lunch. The mayor had marked the menu to indicate the dishes he desired. I was on the boat deck.

"I went below at lunch call to tell father that his lunch was ready. He had been taking his meals in one of the state rooms. He was seated in his chair, apparently asleep. I shook him gently, but he did not respond.

"Artificial Aid Fails. "His trained nurse, who had been with him ten minutes previously, was summoned, and the ship's surgeon, Doctor Hopper, was called. The mayor was given a hypodermic injection, and artificial respiration was resorted to. But it was quickly apparent that he was beyond aid.

"They stopped for an examination. The stethoscope showed that the heart was no longer beating.

"The body was taken in charge by the ship's officers. It was embalmed and placed in a sealed casket.

"On the morning of his death, the mayor arose about nine, and after a hearty breakfast went on deck. He walked about on the boat deck at frequent intervals, keeping in the sun. He watched the men go through fire drill. About ten minutes before one he descended to the promenade deck and went to his chair, remarking that he felt very well.

"Health Showed Improvement. "During the voyage his health had steadily improved. His nervousness decreased noticeably. The mayor had taken great interest in the ship's daily run and was particular to know just where the Baltic was when the chart was pointed out in the companionway each noon.

"On behalf of my mother, my family and myself, I wish to express publicly my deep gratitude to Captain Ransom and his officers for kindness, courtesy and unfailing thoughtfulness. "I wish to acknowledge my debt to the passengers for their courteousness and consideration at all times in respecting the mayor's desire for privacy.

"RUFUS W. GAYNOR." By the death of Mayor Gaynor, a Republican becomes chief executive of New York city. President Adolph L. Kline of the board of aldermen succeeds to the office.

Mrs. Gaynor was notified immediately of her husband's death. She was deeply grieved, but bore up bravely.

Too Weak to Read Acceptance.

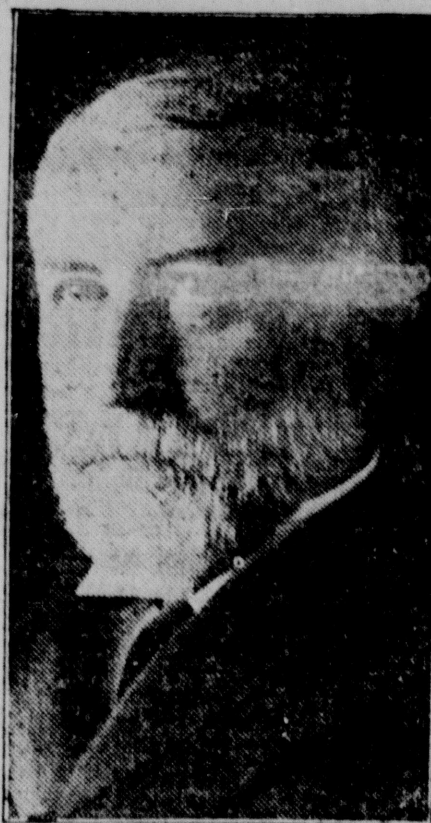

Mayor Gaynor left New York at a time when the city was seething in one of the strangest municipal political campaigns in its history. The day before his departure he was notified on the city hall steps by representatives of independent political organizations that they had chosen him as their standard bearer in the mayoralty campaign. A throng that crowded city hall park assembled to hear him accept. He had prepared a speech of acceptance, but was so weak that he was unable to deliver it, and his secretary read it for him, the mayor standing beside him. Before the mayor sailed, his secretary issued a statement denying reports of the mayor's serious illness.

The recent attack of the old throat trouble, due to the wound inflicted on Aug. 19, 1910, by James J. Gallagher, who died about three months ago in an insane asylum, just as he was about to leave this city for a brief vacation in Europe, had entirely disappeared, according to Mr. Adamson, and the mayor expected to return and enter the campaign with his old time vigor.

Mayor Gaynor's sudden death completely overturns the municipal political situation. It removes from the field a candidate for mayor who was expected to cut heavily into the vote of the fusion nominee, John Purroy Mitchell, and leaves only the tickets dominated by the Democrats and the fusionists. The former is headed by Edward E. McCall, former chairman of the public service commission of this district.

The mayor's renomination was brought about by no particular political faction or party, but represented only his personal popularity. Politicians who discussed his death expected that his followers would make no attempt to nominate a candidate in his place. No other places on the Gaynor ticket have yet been filled. Mayor Gaynor was placed at the head of the independent ticket after Tammany hall had refused him a renomination.

William J. Gaynor was born at Whitestown, Oneida county, New York, in 1873.

Gaynor's Last Message. New York, Sept. 12.—Mayor Gaynor's last message to this city, sent to an evening newspaper by wireless, read:

"Steamer Baltic, via Segaponak, L. I., Sept. 5.—The rentpayers and taxpayers of New York city will not throw the government of their city back into the hands of an outside king grafter.

"Nor will they throw it into the control of a vulgar gang of grafters, all of one stripe, such as met at Delmonico's.

"Give them the shovel.

"No king, no clown, shall rule this town. That day is gone forever.

"W. J. GAYNOR."

INSANE MAN FOUND STARVING

Patient in Kankakee Asylum Discovered by Plumbers.

Kankakee, Ill., Sept. 12.—John Robertson, a patient at the State Hospital for the Insane, unconscious and nearly starved, was found in a forsaken room in the basement of the institution, where he has been hiding for 40 days and 40 nights.

The man's body was crouched at the foot of a rusty water pipe from which a drop of water fell every few minutes. This water, it is believed, is the only sustenance he has had since July 31, when he disappeared.

Robertson was found by a party of plumbers. He was taken to a hospital and fed by artificial means. Superintendent Michael Kelly said physicians believed there was some chance of the patient's recovery.

GOOD

NEED OF ROAD IMPROVEMENT

One of Essentials to Prosperity of Country is Good Highways—Special Action Necessary.

(By RALPH PARSHALL, Colorado Agricultural College.)

A busy growing nation such as ours certainly requires internal improvements to keep pace with its prosperity.
 Our prosperity is measured by industrial activities and such activities are scattered in all parts of our great commonwealth.

There are several essentials to promote this growth, and one of the chief of these is that of good roads or highways.

Investigations have shown that the average horse can exert at a walking pace a traction pull of about one-eighth to one-tenth his weight. Assuming this to be about the correct value, what effect will the kind of road have upon the load the horse is able to pull?

On an asphalt pavement it requires 30 to 70 pounds pull to move one ton on a sand road 100 to 200 pounds pull to move the same road. We might conclude that the limits are 30 to 250 pounds for the best to the poorest surface. This one horse, say of 1,500 pounds weight, could draw a load of five tons on the smooth asphalt pavement and only 1,200 pounds on the soft sand road. These figures are only approximately correct since they are average values, but sufficiently close to give us some idea of the relative value of good and poor road surfaces.

Before any district or state can fully realize the value of good roads, special action on its part must be necessary. This action must embrace three things: a non-political organization, whose purpose is to provide good roads; a practical and economical construction, and maintenance.

There should be one or more good business men on the board of control, a lawyer of some years' experience should be a member and there should be represented on the board of control

An Improved Michigan Road.

an engineer who knows his business.
 The engineer should also be chief engineer of the construction with as many assistants as necessary to carry on the work of road building. Some states of our commonwealth have made the state engineer the chief engineer of a road commission whose personnel is composed of business men, lawyers, and engineers who receive no salary and are appointed by the governor of the state for a definite period of time.

There are several methods of organization and only experience will eliminate the undesirable elements, leaving the good. What might be successful in one part of the country may be unsuccessful in another.

SHOWING PLEASES BOOSTERS

Work Done on Highway Improvements During Last Year is Successful All Over Country.

Good roads movements have been unusually successful in many states during the year just ended, according to figures given out in New York showing the liberal appropriations which various legislatures made.

New York state heads the list with a $50,000,000 bond issue added to its previous appropriation of an equal amount, and as good a showing is said to be assured in Pennsylvania, where a proposed $50,000,000 appropriation is pending. In California an $18,000,000 bond issue is now being expended, and in Maine a $2,000,000 issue has been authorized, to be met by the automobile fees.

The defeat of the $50,000,000 bond issue in Ohio is said by the good roads enthusiasts to be the only discouraging feature of the year, and they believe it will be reconsidered. Many states have made slight increases in their good roads appropriations.

JEROME REBUKES
THAW CHAMPION

Canadian Who Caused Prosecutor's Arrest Denounced at Colebrook, N. H.

PLOT TO KIDNAP SLAYER

Court Battle is Scheduled to Take Place Today—Judge to Be Urged to Remand Prisoner Until Warrant Arrives.

Colebrook, N. H., Sept. 12.—More than a score of Canadians, several of them opponents of William Travers Jerome after his arrest in Coaticook, Que., last week on a charge of gambling, and others from Sherbrooke, where Harry K. Thaw received much applause in court, have followed the fugitive across the border into New Hampshire and revived the intense partisanship feeling so evident while Thaw was in the dominion. Jerome publicly denounced one of them, who had worked up evidence against him on a gambling charge.

Increase Armed Guards.
 The armed guards about Thaw's hotel were increased. Chief of Police Charles Kelley appointed twelve deputies after hearing stories that New York officers might attempt to spirit Thaw away, and he augmented them to twenty in the face of rumors that the Canadian contingent might essay the same thing.

Groups of Canadians stood about the hotel corridors and on the street corners throughout the day and closely followed Thaw on the two trips he made from his room. The first of these was to the barber shop, the second to the office of his chief counsel, Thomas Johnson.

Real Fight Begins Today.
 Unless more delay intervenes Thaw will be brought before Justice Carr today on the complaint that he is wanted in New York for conspiracy. Counsel for New York will ask that he be remanded until a requisition warrant can be presented to Governor Felker and that he be removed to the county jail at Lancaster. Then will begin the real fight against extradition.

In preparation for this Thaw has retained still another lawyer. He is N.
 E. Martin, formerly mayor of Concord, a leader in the state democracy and a close associate of Governor Felker. He arrived in Colebrook Thursday.

ELLIS ISLAND FOR MILITANT

Mrs. Pankhurst Will Be Held Up Before Board of Inquiry.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant English suffragette, who sailed from France to the United States, will be held up at Ellis Island on her arrival and compelled to appear before a special board of inquiry. When Mrs.
 Pankhurst arrives the immigration officials will have from the English government her full police court record obtained from the English government by the state department at the request of the department of labor.
 It was learned that the department has taken the matter up and intends to see that Mrs. Pankhurst shall go through an examination at Ellis Island during which she will be asked to explain some of her acts abroad in connection with her political campaign.

Fancy Towel.

An unusually handsome towel can be made of heavy linen huck and coronation crochet insertion. Procure a huck towel of the size desired (the insertion is rather too heavy for the small guest towel, with hemstitched ends. Cut one end off about an inch and a half above the hem. On the raw edge of the towel and on the raw edge of the piece cut off, make the narrowest possible hems by hand.
 The coronation crochet to be used is that beautiful lace made by crocheting coronation braid into a design with heavy crochet cotton. It is quite as effective as cluny. Join the two places of the towel, after they are each hemmed, by whipping on to both small hems the strip of insertion.
 Only one end of the towel should be ornamented in this fashion, the hemstitching being sufficient for the other end.

Cold Boiled Rice as Luncheon Dish.

Cold boiled rice can be used in a good luncheon or breakfast dish.

Butter a baking dish and put a layer of rice in it, then one of cheese, either grated or cut into little bits.

Sprinkle with salt and pepper, put in another layer of rice and cheese and cover the dish with bread crumbs.

Four one-half cupful of rich milk or cream over the rice and bake for thirty minutes in a hot oven or until it is nicely browned.

Wanted His Papa.

Leonard, a lovable and precocious boy of two and a half years, is very fond of his father. One day, studying the big, large figured calendar in his mother's kitchen, he asked why some of the figures were red and others black. Mother explained that the red letter days were Sundays. "The days when papa stays home!" The bright baby exclaimed. A little later another calendar was brought into the house, and at sight of its plain black lettering, Leonard cried: "There's no red letter Sundays for papa to stay home on," he sobbingly explained.

An Interesting Word
About Fabrics

All styles indicate a return to the feminine—the skirt of even the most severe tailor-made has a suggestion of drapery and everything tends toward the elaborate, even for street and morning wear. The fabrics themselves reflect the desire for dressier costumes and serges and worsteds are supplanted by materials that are so soft and supple as to drape gracefully.

The beauty and novelty of the new wool Ratines and Matelasse, developed in delightful effects, as well as the charming Jacquard, have won unlimited enthusiasm. The Cheviots, the loose woven Etamine Cheviots and many recently developed rough novelty materials are high in favor.

Let us show you all these charming new fabrics as Bischof uses them this season. You will find these graceful draperies exceedingly becoming. The moment you try these suits on, you see how noticeably they give you the fashionable silhouette.

Tonight the Princess theatre will show "Mammy's Secret Code," in 2

 erations, a true story with thrilling battles and fine photo-play.

FAMILY THEATRE

The biggest moving picture feature ever shown in this vicinity is the Battle of Gettysburg, which will be shown this evening at the Family theatre, following a matinee performance this afternoon, which was greatly enjoyed by a large crowd, and which proved to all who saw it that the assertion that this 5-reel feature is one of the greatest films ever made, is true. The film depicts most vividly the horrors of the charge of Pickett's intrepid men and the vigor of the attack, the intensity of the real struggle, the chagrin of defeat and its pathos which form a story and picture sufficiently realistic to provoke frequent cheering. It is truly a great picture and undoubtedly the popular play house will be full to capacity this evening.

AMBOY

Amboy, Sept. 11.—A large delegation from here attended the exercises in the new Odd Fellows hall at Lee Center Wednesday. The services were very interesting with Sherman L. Shaw as chairman of the evening's program. In the early part of the evening the electric lights refused to burn all the time but were all right later. The drill work by Minnie Belle Rehbehn staff of Dixon did fine work. Beside the Lee Center talent Mrs. Kent of Dixon favored the audience with a vocal solo. Special cars ran all day on the electric road and many came in autos. The day will long be remembered.

Some rain fell today. With the fair close at hand it is hoped it will rain sufficiently before the end of the week to lay the dust, which has been very unpleasant on the main streets in Amboy as they have not been oiled nor even sprinkled with water.

Miss Neta Badger visited with Miss Katherine Aschenbrenner this week at Lee Center.

The ladies of the M. E. church will serve dinner and supper Sept. 18, fair week, from 11 a. m. until all have been served. Supper from 5 p. m. on.

Mrs. Lucius Clark of Chicago, who has been a guest of Mrs. Taylor, left for home the last of the week.

Postmaster Chadwick of Ashton visited with Wm. V. Jones this week and attended the Odd Fellows exercises at Lee Center on Wednesday.

Several special coaches containing members of the Peoria Association of Commerce, being the publicity fellowship excursion, arrived here a about 10 a. m. Thursday. A short session was held in Masonic hall with a few of the representative business men of Amboy. The train left about noon. The men made almost 25 stops along the line, taking two days for the trip.

L. L. Brink and wife entertained his parents from Dixon Wednesday. They went from here to Lee Center and were guests at the Oakes home.

The M. W. A. are holding their annual picnic here today. Doubtless the rain will prevent many from attending.

Miss Lena Scranton, teacher at the West Brick Primary school, was unable to teach a few days this week on account of her voice failing her, the result of a sore throat. Miss Searls is taking the position during her absence.

Mrs. L. Mellen went to Chicago Monday to spend the week and to meet some friends.

Stewart Covel has been seriously ill for several days, but is somewhat improved.

Miss Clara Jewett has returned from six weeks' visit in Chicago. She expects to attend the fair at Springfield later, having relatives in that city.

Otis Thompson and family returned to Chicago Friday after a two weeks' visit with Mr. Thompson's parents.

Plans are being perfected for the Sunday school field trial at the ball park Saturday afternoon. Ten races and contests followed by an inter-class ball game. Good prizes will be given the winners. Frank Dennis and family and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Taylor went to Starved Rock Sunday.

The Adrian school, Miss Ruth Vocum, teacher, has been closed for a couple of weeks because of an epidemic of whooping cough.

Rev. Graham has designated Sunday morning, Sept. 12 as Farmers' day at the M. E. church and urges all country people to attend the service with their families, who have no other church service that demands their attendance. A message the entire community should hear will be delivered.

John Banks attended the meeting of the board of supervisors at Dixon this week.

Miss Sadie Swope, daughter of Life Swope Jr., is acting as organist at the M. E. church at present.

The league will resume their evening devotional services at 6:30 Sunday evening.

H. G. REYNOLDS COLLECTS FINE HERD OF STOCK

H. G. Reynolds has returned to Dixon from an eastern trip. The following is taken from the Governor, N. Y., Free Press:

John A. Marshall, the well known Ayrshire breeder of the Griffith district of this town, whose property is known as Woodlawn Farm, Monday disposed of six head of his registered stock to Horace G. Reynolds of Dixon, Ill., who had them shipped to his farm near Chaumont, Jefferson county, yesterday. Mr. Reynolds purchased two handsome two-year-olds and four yearlings, the latter being daughters of Mr. Marshall's imported sire, Lessnesock Arthur, one of the most valuable animals of the breed day after tomorrow at the home of Mrs. in this northern section. Mr. Reynolds, who was a former resident of Dixon, this village for many years, is collecting one of the best Ayrshire herds in this north country and in doing Dysart and Mrs. J. G. Heckman. The so he is making his selections very carefully and over a wide range of country.

SHE LIKED GAY PLUMAGE

By JULIA MAXWELL.

Essie Adams liked gay plumage. Her New York aunt, whom she was visiting, did not approve of anything that would attract attention. That was why she objected to Essie's wearing a brand-new bonnet with the jangling yellow feather.

"I'd rather you wouldn't wear that hat, Essie," said Aunt Linda Mallow. "It looks tacky."

Essie bit her lip in disappointment, put away the gorgeous thing of shimmering yellow and donned a plain black-and-blue straw which her aunt had selected for her on her last visit to the city a year before.

"That looks more like you, my dear. Young girls are apt to be misunderstood when they wear conspicuous hats."

"But, Auntie, I do love bright things. Other girls wear them, and nice girls, too, I'm sure."

Aunt Linda was not disposed to argue the question. Besides, the electric was waiting for them at the curb. The last few days of her New York visit Essie spent with a girl friend. And when she passed through the gate at the Grand Central station bound for the train that was to take her to her home in an upstate town, she was wearing the hat with the jangling yellow feather. For Aunt Linda was not alone, and her chum, who came to the station with her, adored the hat.

Essie was a gregarious young woman. In the small town where she lived it was a habit for people to be neighborly. So when the middle-aged man in the parlor car seat across the aisle offered her a magazine, she accepted it with a smile and a nod of the yellow feather. When she entered the dining car for luncheon and the dining car conductor placed her opposite the same man, she was not displeased. He was a well-groomed, interesting-looking man. And Essie liked men. When the stranger suggested that she order lunch for both of them, Essie didn't mind. Luncheon for one was always deadily stupid. Of course, she realized that Aunt Linda would be horrified at such a proceeding, but Aunt Linda was old-fashioned. It was common talk in the family that Linda was entirely too diffident, too reserved. She was not nearly so popular as her sisters, who were of more sociable men. However, never a breath of scandal had attached to Linda's name, and there were some of the family that—well, that's quite another matter.

Essie enjoyed the luncheon, and though she endeavored in the usual way to pay the check, her protestations were quickly swept away. As the man piloted her back to her chair in the parlor car, she was conscious of a certain guilty feeling, but she put it from her. How could a girl be expected to do anything else? She was only human, and she liked to talk to people. She couldn't play any kind of a game by herself. There are many young girls like Essie.

It was only twenty minutes until Essie's home town would be reached. She was rather sorry. She was having such a good time.

"I'd like to see you again," said the man, meaningly.

"Oh, thank you," laughed the girl. "I've enjoyed meeting you."

"But you don't live far from Buffalo, and haven't you some friends there that you could tell your parents you were going to visit—while you really came down to spend a few days with me? I know a nice little place where we could go and be undisturbed. Here's my card. That's my office address. Write me when you can get away."

Essie was dumfounded. All the color had gone out of her face. She felt sick to the very depths of her. She simply couldn't speak. The card dropped from her nervous fingers.

But the stranger did not understand. His eyes glittered strangely, while the mark of the beast was in every line of his face. "You're a great little kiddo," he said, "and there isn't anything I wouldn't do for you. Do you think you could come down to see me in a few days?"

The girl found voice, but still it was not her own voice. It was the voice of a girl who has suddenly had every ideal and illusion knocked from under her.

"Oh, oh, you horrible thing, you! I—I—you've made a mistake. Oh, I hate you, hate you! I never want to see you again, never!"

When calm came, Essie was in her own room at home—alone. She was glad she was alone. All the joy had gone out of her vacation. She felt unclean, tainted, as if she had been walking through bogs of mud and slime.

And, sobbing, the girl wondered, are all men like that, or was it the yellow feather? It had not yet occurred to her that young girls who accept favors of strange men on trains are very apt to be misunderstood and—insulted. That was one thing that Aunt Linda had forgotten to tell her.

Testing the Upper Air.

By means of balloons the upper air has been tested to a height of nearly 15 miles in this country by the weather observers. During a recent remarkable flight the instruments used recorded a temperature of 70.4 degrees below zero at a distance of 12½ miles above the earth. Wherever the sounding balloons have been used whether near the equator or in northern latitudes, the records have shown that after six miles above the earth the temperature no longer drops rapidly as the instruments ascend, but at times becomes stationary.

VALUE OF SMALL MILK SHED

Should Be Well Ventilated in Summer and Warm in Winter—Have Room for One Cow.

(By M. A. COVERDELL.)

Every farmer should build a small shed or compartment of some kind in which to stand the cows at milking time. The nearer the barn the better. It should be well ventilated in the summer and made warm during the winter months by setting up fodder around it or lining it with building paper or roofing material.

The shed may be any size desired, but ample room for one cow is all that is necessary. Have nails arranged on the wall for hanging milk pails in places of safety while the cows are being led to and from the shed.

If there are any sore teats, caked udders or other ailments to be treated the milk shed offers a safe place in which to do it quickly and any trouble with the animals in hand will cause no disturbance among the other members of the herd. Spraying solution is also easier applied in the shed than anywhere else.

Where one feeds the cows at milking time the milk shed removes the difficulty of feeding the cow that is being milked in sight of the other animals. Some cows will fret and worry away a large portion of their milk if another cow is being fed in sight or hearing of them. Then, feeding the cow in the milk shed makes it unnecessary to use so many feed troughs.

By keeping it well cleaned out and properly drained the milk shed is always ready to lead the cow into and milk under agreeable and sanitary conditions. If it be in the summer time the shed may be darkened and the peaky flies thus gotten rid of, which means a lot of solid comfort to both the cow and the milker as well as a greater amount of milk. With proper ventilation such a shed is also much cooler than the sweltering dairy barn where the animal's breath combined with the heat of their bodies contribute liberally toward the maintenance of a high temperature.

CARING FOR MILK PROPERLY

Two Great Factors Are Cleanliness and Temperature—Expose All Utensils to Sunshine.

Cleanliness and temperature are the two great factors in keeping milk sweet. The fresh-drawn milk is almost free from bacteria until it becomes contaminated either during the milking process or while waiting the start for delivery. To keep them out is not so easily accomplished as the general public imagines. The smallest particles will fall into the pail, even with painstaking care and the best that can be done is to use a sanitary milk pail which should be covered as much as possible and to brush the cow and udder before milking.

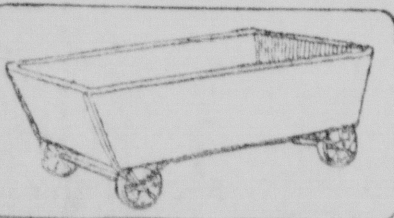

In order to free the milk from the animal heat, it is necessary to aerate and cool at once and hold at a low temperature, thus preventing bacteria starting for it takes but three per cent of lactic acid to start the souring process.

Frequent scalding and exposing to sunshine of all milk utensils and machinery are of vital importance in keeping milk sweet.—Farmer's Wife.

CONVENIENT TRUCK IN BARN

Dairyman Cannot Well Afford to Ignore Anything That Will Tend to Lighten Labors.

No dairyman can afford to ignore that which will lighten his labor in any way whatever. Be his stable ever so conveniently constructed, he has enough to do. Hence the importance of his considering the truck or car presented in the cut, for which we are indebted to an exchange. Made of good lumber, the only iron about it is the handle at each end by which to draw or push it, and the straps which are screwed against the ends, engage the ends of the axle outside the wheels and are screwed flat against the bottom of the truck.

Dairy Barn Truck.

Fat Content of Milk.

The percentage of fat in the cow's milk is determined by two things—first, the breed, and second, the individuality. The milk flow may be stimulated by feed, but the fat content cannot be affected under normal conditions.

Cow Essentials.

It is just as essential to know how to keep a cow at her best in milk production as it is to know how to build her up to her full capacity.

ASSAILS CAUCUS; QUILTS COMMITTEE CLANCY, THE BAD MAN

Congressman Anderson Flails Democratic Method of Framing Legislation.

HANDS IN HIS RESIGNATION

Representative From Minnesota Leaves Ways and Means Body Because of Action on Currency and Tariff.

Washington, Sept. 12.—As the climax of the vigorous Republican condemnation of Democratic legislative methods which have marked the currency debate, Representative Sydney Anderson, Republican of the First Minnesota district, on the floor of the house resigned as a member of the powerful ways and means committee.

From the floor of the house he bitterly assailed legislation through caucus action and partisan consideration of the Underwood tariff bill and the Glass currency bill in committee. He declared that the "system of legislation established here" made his efforts on the committee a "farce and a fraud."

Throughout the day the Republicans had criticized the means employed by the Democrats in framing the currency bill, denouncing the secret sessions of the banking and currency committee majority and the secret sessions of the caucus which endorsed the bill.

Shows South in Control. In analyzing the operation of the caucus system Mr. Anderson declared that fourteen southern states alone send 125 Democrats to the house, "enough to control the legislative policy of the caucus and hence of the house."

"I am induced to resign my membership on the committee on ways and means," Representative Anderson said, "because the rules of this house and the system of legislation in vogue here deprive me of my opportunity for service to the country on that committee and because my continuance on that committee must be construed into an acquiescence in fraud upon those who have a right to believe and do believe that I have had or shall have some part in framing the legislation reported by that committee."

Assails Currency Bill. Representative Prouty, Republican of Iowa, argued that the provision forcing banks to supply the capital for the federal reserve banks amounted to confiscation and made the bill unconstitutional.

Senator Hoke Smith, after a conference with President Wilson today, predicted the currency bill would be enacted into law before December 1.

CHARGE $200,000 FORGERY

Illinoisans Said to Have Lost Money Through Joliet Man.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 12.—James C. O'Connor, banker and real estate broker, who is alleged to have forged notes and committed swindles totaling more than $200,000, raved in his cell in the Will county jail. A dozen citizens who had brought about his arrest threatened to kill him on sight.

O'Connor was arrested when found running about the street bareheaded and singing. The warrant against him was issued on the request of John Metes, Jr., a railroad switchman, who charges O'Connor with larceny of $1,750. Authorities of the city, searching the banker's effects after the arrest, are declared to have found forged mortgage notes totaling a huge sum. A church organization is said to have lost $30,000 on mortgages submitted to O'Connor. Speculation in stocks on a margin basis is said to have caused O'Connor to lose large sums of money.

BIGAMIST DEFENDED BY WIFE

Says Husband Is Drug Victim and Irresponsible.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 12.—"Oh, papa, papa, how could you do it? I cannot believe it; I will not," exclaimed Mrs. Grace Brand Cole, wife No. 2 of David Cole, self-confessed bigamist, as she rushed sobbing into his arms in his cell at the county jail.

"If I had a million dollars, I'd fight this thing and free David," she said. "Edith Alspack (wife No. 3, Huntington, Ind.) is a brute to prosecute an irresponsible man." She claimed he is a drug victim and that makes him irresponsible for his actions.

Cole was arraigned in municipal court, stood mute and was bound over to the October term of circuit court. In default of $1,000 bail, he was remanded to the county jail.

W. F. Havemeyer Is Buried.

New York, Sept. 12.—William F. Havemeyer's funeral took place at his late residence 11 East Forty-ninth street, New York. The service was conducted by Rev. George Alexander, pastor of the University Place Presbyterian church. The members of the family present included H. O. Havemeyer, a brother. Among those who attended the service was J. P. Morgan.

Shot by Rejected Suitor.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 12.—While her three-year-old daughter clung to her skirts, Mrs. Nellie Addis, thirty-six years old, housekeeper in a boarding house here, was shot and probably fatally wounded by John Sandusky, a rejected suitor, who killed himself.

By EVERETT FILLMORE.

Paul Muir found Western life exactly as he had expected to find it. The picturesque cowboys with their chaps and spurs he had always known to be a legend. Nevertheless, a great deal of the wild frontier spirit still survived in this corner of Arizona. For instance, the town boasted a real "bad man"—one Clancy, to wit, whose record of seven deaths and much successful stock rustling had made his name a by-word throughout the state.

Paul had gone West for his health. He was well now, but the country had grown into his heart and he contemplated settling there. He had bought five hundred acres of irrigated land. Sometimes, though, the appalling loneliness drove him into Falling Brook, to seek amusement among his fellows.

The hotel was crowded on this particular evening and the bartender tersely explained that the cowboys were in town and that a dance was to be held. All the girls of the neighborhood had flocked in to attend it, and there would be several weddings as a consequence, for matchmaking is not prolonged when one lives a hundred miles or so from one's sweetheart.

Bessie looked up at Paul with a flicker of amusement and then went on polishing the glasses.

"I suppose you're looking forward to a good time, Miss Bessie," hazarded Paul.

Nobody knew much about pretty Bessie Smith, the hotel-keeper's waitress, except that she had come from the East, also to regain her health, and, having found it, had fallen in love with the country. But though there was no girl who could begin to compare with her in charm, Bessie boys, Paul had never known why.

"I always enjoy myself," said Bessie quietly, and went on polishing her glasses.

Later in the evening Paul entered the dance hall. Round the wall stood a double row of chairs, filled not with girls, but with men, who sat glumly watching the dancers. Since the cowboys outnumbered the women by about two to one, there were necessarily not enough partners for them all. Some of the men danced together, but most of them waited for the turns promised by the girls. As for these latter, they were enjoying themselves to the full and distributing their favors with impartial benevolence.

Into the Room There Strode a Little Man.

But among the groups of waiting men, or rather, a little apart from all, seated in her chair and looking listlessly upon the dancers was pretty Bessie. Paul strode toward her.

"May I have the pleasure of a dance with you?" he asked.

As he stopped in front of her he noticed that all eyes were turned on him. The dancers almost stood still, even the fiddles and the tinkling piano seemed to falter for an instant. Paul felt an atmosphere of indefinite suspense, as though he had committed some fearful breach of the social code.

Bessie's eyes looked into Paul's. There was unmistakable amusement in them. She seemed to be reading him; then she rose and gave him her hand.

"I think you are the only man among this crowd," she said, and they swept into the dance.

Bessie danced divinely. Paul, grown used to loneliness, felt himself becoming intoxicated by the music. Her light form felt like gossamer in his arms. Bessie's eyes were shining. A new and strange feeling crept into Paul's heart. If he could win this girl, who was so different from all the rest! She spoke as a cultured woman from the east; there was no doubt but that they were essentially suited to each other.

He led her back to her chair and took a seat beside her. He noticed then that the chair on either side was empty.

"Why won't they dance with you?" he asked.

Bessie's eyes grew wide with astonishment. "You don't know?" she stammered. "O, I thought you were so brave."

"But tell me," he pleaded.

"Ask Brown," said Bessie blantly. Brown was the hotel-keeper. Paul left her abruptly and strode over to where Brown stood behind the supper table. But he had no chance to ask "Young feller," said Brown, laying his hand heavily on Paul's shoulder, "I admire your grit—if you knew what you was doing. If you didn't, you'd best borrow my mare—mind you send her back—and beat it for Goldmine. Clancy's in town and he's as like as not to come to the dance."

"I don't know anything about Clancy," said Paul, "or why I should leave town because of him."

"I guessed you didn't," answered Brown. "Now listen while I tell you, and then clear out. Miss Bessie is Clancy's girl, and he's the best shot in Arizona. If he knew any man had danced with her or spoken to her, except in the most of nary way, he'd spit him as I'd spit a mad dog. You wouldn't have no chance to draw on him. That's Clancy. See. That's why them boys don't want to stir up no trouble with Clancy. Now take my advice and get, because I runs a respectable hotel and I don't want no trouble here."

"Thanks," said Paul brusquely, and went back to Bessie.

"I know now," he said. "I hear Mr. Clancy's in town and that he might object to my dancing with you. May I have another dance, Miss Bessie?"

The girl rose and something in her eyes answered the plea in his. It meant, to Paul, that she was willing to trust her future to him, that Clancy's domination meant less than nothing to her. The music started and they went whirling over the polished floor.

Suddenly the music quavered and stopped. Paul discovered that Bessie and he were dancing alone, and, since the music showed no signs of resuming, they ceased also. They were quite alone in one corner of the room, and every one else seemed to have drawn away as if by instinct.

Then into the room there strode a little man, quick-gaited, with the manner acquired by the plainsman. In his belt he wore two revolvers prominently displayed.

"Hello, Brown!" he said with a familiar nod. He motioned to the musicians and the music resumed. He walked into the thick of the crowd and touched a girl upon the arm. She surrendered herself to him, and he led the dance again.

Paul watched him as they circled round and round. The outlaw seemed not to notice him. It was not until the dance was ended that he caught sight of Bessie.

"Git out!" he said to Paul, and pulled the girl toward him. Paul's flat shot out and the man dropped at his feet. As he fell he pulled a revolver from his belt, but before he could aim it the mob of men had fallen upon him.

The room became a struggling pandemonium. Paul pulled Bessie through the surging crowd, got her to the door, and led her to where his horse stood tethered. No one was following them, but inside the dance hall pandemonium still held sway. Paul took off his horse's headstall and swung his partner into the saddle. Then he mounted behind her and in a moment they were cantering across the plains under the starlight.

She made no resistance, but by the light of the heavens he could see that her eyes were open and looking into his. He drew her into his arm.

"Bessie," he said, "I've only seen you five times, but I've counted each one. I love you, dear. I am going to take you away with me. I've won you from Clancy."

"O—Clancy!" she said, with a laugh. "I never saw Clancy in my life before."

"But you were engaged to him," said Paul.

Bessie crept closer to him. "Let me tell you about that," she said. "You don't know anything about me, but you trust me and believe in me. I was a school-teacher in Ohio. I had to come west for my health. I couldn't teach any more for it would have killed me. Somehow, I drifted to Phoenix. There I had the opportunity to work as Brown's waitress."

"I soon found that western men are just as brave and chivalrous as in the east. But I was different from the country girls round about here. Everybody wanted to marry me. At dances they neglected the rest for me. The women were jealous of me and spoke spitefully. I saw that I would have to leave unless I could discover some way of stopping these attentions."

"Then Clancy began to be notorious and I thought of inventing that story about his being my lover. I never saw him in my life before tonight. But it worked like a charm. There wasn't a man among them dared to speak to me, except in a civil way, or to dance with me until you came."

John laughed and, bending over her, kissed her.

"I'm going to take you into Goldmine, sweetheart," he said. "There's a preacher there—and then we're going home."

"Home," Bessie repeated, and there were tears in her eyes as their lips met for the second time.

Real Peace of Mind.

"One of the unusual things I saw on my vacation in northern Indiana was a contented farmer," said Mayor Shanks' secretary to an Indianapolis Star reporter.

"We were going in an automobile on a fishing expedition north of Bass lake, and we stopped to ask a farmer the road. He was sitting in his yard, whittling. He gave us the information, and just to let him know that we were friendly, I asked him his opinion on politics."

"That's something that don't worry me," the farmer said. "Why should I worry about politics or anything else? Here I am, living on a good farm, got a good barn, and a wife that's a good worker; why should I worry?"

No Favorite Day for Weddings.

There has been a curious change of sentiment since the time when one particular day of the week led all the rest as a favorite for weddings. In the recent post-Lenten marriages this was strikingly apparent. There was somewhat of a preference for Tuesday and Saturday. But the other days were by no means neglected. The week that Miss Ethel Roosevelt became Mrs. Richard Derby a fashionable wedding was announced for every single day, except of course, Sunday. Not even Friday was slighted. Although that supposedly unlucky and ostracized member of the calendar of days was once tabooed by all brides, it was the very one chosen by Miss Roosevelt herself.

Kismet.

A woman employed a servant who had just come from Ireland. A piece of statutory stood in the conservatory which bore the inscription "Kismet." One morning the maid was cleaning in the conservatory when the mistress came in. "Would yez be after tellin' me, ma'am," said the girl, "what the writin' means on the bottom of this figger?" "The word is 'Kismet' and means 'fate,'" replied the mistress. "Sure, an' it is so!" said the girl, curiously. Some weeks later the maid came into her mistress' room with quite a limp. "Why, Della, what is the matter with you?" asked the mistress. "Sure, ma'am," replied Della, "an' I have the most terrible corns on me Kismet, ma'am."

How She Won Out.

"O, Fred," she cried, in perplexed tones, "I'm afraid we must part!" "Part? Why should we part, dear?" he echoed. "On account of father," she replied; "he fears we must be misnamed. We are so different, he says." "In what way are we so different?" he asked with a show of dignity. "Well, father says I am of such ready and willing disposition, while you seem so—so backward, so reluctant and hesitating; so—so loth to come to the—the point, don't you know?" "He does, does he?" blustered Fred, bracing up, and the very next afternoon she was showing her friends how stunning it looked on the third finger of her left hand.

Migratory Birds.

Measures for the international protection of migratory birds logically follow the passing of a federal law for the protection of birds passing between the states, and the purpose of the resolution introduced in the senate by Mr. McLean of Connecticut is commendable. The fact that more than a dozen foreign countries would have to be negotiated with in carrying it out is an interesting reminder of our neighborly relationships, notwithstanding our isolated position. It must be admitted also that it makes the present feasibility of the plan somewhat doubtful.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Steel That Will Not Rust.

A new kind of steel is reported to have been perfected by Joseph C. Marsh of Cincinnati. The new metal resists files, saws, and drills, and while it can be made so hard no drill can penetrate it, it can be bent to a sharp angle without signs of cracking or flaw. Drills made from the steel have been driven by blows of sledge hammers through four inches of solid foundry iron with no signs of breakage or strain. The metal takes a fine polish and is said to be rustless. It is close grained in texture and weighs more per cubic inch than any other steel on the market.

Blessings in Disguise.

In life sunshine and shadow succeed one another as quickly as in an April day. If we turn our backs on our blessings and magnify our troubles we make ourselves miserable; if we look to the sunshine and leave the shadows behind us, we shall find that we have much to be thankful for, and in most cases that the good things are real, while what seems evils are but blessings in disguise—are warnings, or trials, or difficulties, which make the value of victory.—Lord Avebury.

Did Useful Work to the End.

"The greatest Australian woman" is, or was, Miss Catherine Helen Spence, according to the editor of the Adelaide Register. She was an eloquent speaker, a versatile writer, an efficient organizer, and she devoted her long life to public work on educational, philanthropic and social reform lines. An incurable optimist as well as a tireless worker, she wrote on her eightieth birthday: "I enjoy life as much as I did at eighteen—indeed, in many respects I enjoy it more."

"Helplessness" of Londoners.

It was not the brightly polished boots of the Londoners that most impressed an old Canadian whom I took to see the sights of the metropolis some time ago. It was his first sight of us, and he was frank. He confided to me that he was most struck by our "general helplessness," and illustrated his meaning by telling me that in the town he came from the lawyer thought it no shame to carry a sack of flour through the street, the doctor may be seen spending his leisure by painting his house, or the person engaged with spade and pick, like any navvy. And now my Canadian friend had arrived in a country where a man could not every carry his own portmanteau to the station. Of course I defended our British point of view, and discoursed of iron conventions, but I could not avoid feeling that Canadian sentiment is healthier than our own in these things.—London Chronicle.

Line of Least Resistance.

The waiter, in wishing me good morning, remarked that the day was much colder. I had as a matter of fact thought it particularly close and muggy, but I agreed with him. At the cloakroom, where a man, at a daily remuneration of sixpence, takes charge of a hat and coat that would repose on a chair beside me for nothing, had I the courage, I was told that the weather seemed much more promising; and again I agreed, although I had no such belief. Finally, the splendid creature who, in return for more money, blows the whistle once for a cab for me, said that it was a nice day on the whole; and once more I agreed. But what I want to know is, what does the Recording Angel do about this kind of thing?—Punch.

The Present Representative.

"Whom are you talking to, sir? I want you to understand I come from one of the best and most famous families this country has produced. My family does things, sir! My grandfathers was a renowned scientist and inventor whose name is immortal, and my father was a great author and philanthropist whose works are known of all men! I repeat, sir, my family does things!" "Indeed! And what have you done or are you doing?" "I am invited to all of the finest and most exclusive social affairs because of my ancestors, and I am having a royal time with the money they left!"—Judge.

Art and the Average Man.

Norman Hapgood, seated under a royal palm in Bermuda, talked about art. "The average man's idea of art, of beauty," he said, "is as erroneous as Blank's."

"Blank, a real estate agent, paused in Madison Square to watch an artist sketching a skyscraper. "Sketchin' that?" he said. "Why don't you sketch the one on the other side of the street?"

"But this one," said the artist, "is so much more picturesque." "Picturesque he hanged!" said Blank. "The offices are so dark they won't rent for love or money."

End of a Myth of the Sea.
 With the first anniversary of the sinking of the Titanic are two events strongly reflective of the influence of that memorable disaster for greater safety in ocean travel. The huge Venterland, launched recently at Hamburg, will carry 73 lifeboats, and 70 of these can be launched from either side of the ship, and can accommodate the whole capacity of the vessel in human freight. No list of the ship can put out of commission half of the boats. The reconstructed Olympic starts on its first voyage with an outer shell to take the force and damage of such a glancing blow as wrecked the Titanic, and leave an inner shell to keep it afloat. It was held unsinkable before this reconstruction. It is now called unsinkable, but carries more than double its old number of lifeboats in deference to the truth of bitter experience as against the claims of marine architects. So passes a modern myth of the sea. There is no such thing as an unsinkable ship. But at what cost to human life has the illusion been shattered!

Ellen Terry's Age.
 "I do not believe in birthdays," said Miss Ellen Terry in reply to a request by an "Express" representative for an interview. "I do not reckon my age in birthdays at all." What does it matter, therefore, if the calendar proclaims her to be sixty-five years old. If Miss Ellen Terry has the gaiety and heart of twenty-five? Her birthday will be quietly kept at her Georgian house, in Chelsea; hundreds of people will remind her by telegram and present that she ought to be sixty-five; but Ellen Terry is incorrigible. She just snaps her fingers at the passing years, and has learned how to hoodwink Father Time so that even he would shake his head, if he could see her, and say, "Tut! tut! There must be some mistake here; she can't be sixty-five!"—London Express.

Framed Shopping List.
 How many times have you lost the shopping list scrap of paper and returned home after a wearying day to find that you had forgotten the most important errands? You wouldn't have these experiences if you made a frame for the shopping list—just a small affair of cardboard covered with tapestry—that will fit easily into your handbag and can promptly be found. The frame is backed with a square of thin cardboard and fits under tiny nailheads at the side of the tapestry-covered pieces, and this need only be taken out and the paper list of errands slipped against the glass permanently attached to the frame.

Her Inglorious End.
 The famous American full-rigged sailing ship Glory of the Seas, which was built in Boston in 1869, has just been sold on the Pacific coast and will be converted into a floating cold storage plant for use in the fish business. The old ship, one of the few remaining clippers, will soon be overhauled at Seattle and cold storage machinery will be installed. For many years the Glory of the Seas was engaged in the China trade, which in the olden days was one of the most profitable fields for ships and barks.

How Would You Like—
 "Dropped a little at roulette while I was abroad," remarked the ice man. "Can't beat that game," said the coal man. "Wasn't trying to. I just wanted to see how it feels to lose money."

GAYNOR'S LIFE LAUDED

TRIBUTES SHOW INFLUENCE OF WORK WAS NATION-WIDE.

Tammany Man, but Always Too Strong to Be Ruled by Organization.

New York, Sept. 12.—Expressions of regret over the death of Mayor Gaynor from all quarters of the United States poured into New York.

Secretary of State Bryan—"It is terribly sad and none will regret it more than I, who have known Mr. Gaynor so long and admired his sterling qualities."

Theodore Roosevelt—"Mayor Gaynor's career has been not only distinguished, but in all its characteristics unique. We have lost in him not only one of the most fearless, but one of the most original and interesting of all our public servants, national and local."

Charles F. Murphy—"I was very much shocked. I knew he went away a very sick man. I deeply regret his death."

John Purroy Mitchel, fusion candidate for mayor—"Mayor Gaynor was a man of extraordinary ability and attainments. Every citizen of New York, without distinction of party, will receive the news of his death with profound regret."

Edward E. McCall—"His long career of devoted, patriotic, public service leaves an obligation on the part of this community which we can never fully meet or repay."

J. P. Morgan—"I was greatly shocked to hear of Mr. Gaynor's death, and much grieved. I think he was an excellent mayor."

Frank A. Munsey, publisher—"Mayor Gaynor was an original nature. He worked out problems and policies in his own way and stood by them regardless of adverse comment from anyone or any newspaper. Mr. Gaynor will stand out in history as one of New York's greatest mayors—a fearless man, free from the terrors of tyranny from any source."

President Wilson in Washington expressed to callers his personal regret at the death of Mayor Gaynor, but issued no formal statement.

SULZER IMPEACHMENT LEGAL

Justice Hasbrouck Decides Assembly Acted Regularly.

Kingston, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Justice Hasbrouck of the state supreme court decided that Governor Sulzer was regularly impeached and while awaiting impeachment trial was divested of the right to exercise his executive functions, including the power to pardon. The question came before Justice Hasbrouck in connection with habeas corpus proceedings brought to compel the New York city authorities to honor Governor Sulzer's pardon of Joseph G. Robin, the banker convict. The justice decided that Robin's pardon was invalid, quashed the writ and sent him back to prison at Blackwell's Island.

GAYNOR WAS WORTH MILLION

Was Holder of Many Mortgages and Realty.

New York, Sept. 12.—Mayor Gaynor died worth more than $1,000,000. He owned mortgages on property in all parts of Brooklyn and he owned many parcels of real estate. Records of the register's office of King's county show that he held title to at least thirty separate parcels of real estate and about seventy-five mortgages of amounts up to $50,000. Aside from his fine place at St. James, the mayor also owned other property in Suffolk county. His real estate and mortgage wealth is estimated at $1,000,000.

He succeeded his father, Jeremiah Waterman, in the grain business. Two years ago he was said to be worth several millions, but his estate was reduced to about $800,000 through losses.

Evenrude Row-Boat Motor

This is an exceedingly small compact 2 horse power gasoline motor which can be attached instantly to the stern of a row boat. It will drive an ordinary row boat from five to eight miles an hour depending on the model of the boat. The motor is exceedingly simple.

It makes boating a great pleasure.

See one running at our store.

IMPORTANT TO REMEMBER

It is against the law to sell Rock River Catfish.

It is against the law to put Gasoline in a can or jug not painted Red.

It is time to can Michigan Peaches.

Elberta Peaches are not Cling Stones though they cling a little.

Old Wheat Flour is better than New Wheat Flour.
